Maybe that's where you are now. Meanwhile, here at Cooney Lees Morgan, some of New Zealand's brightest young lawyers and best legal support staff are thriving. They are involved in helping real people – smart people from significant businesses - make real decisions. They have real responsibility, real client contact. They are finding it challenging and rewarding, sophisticated and commercial.

Established in 1918, and with a total staff of over 70 – including around 40 lawyers and legal executives - Cooney Lees Morgan is a substantial firm, ranked in New Zealand's top 20*.

But actually, we're just getting started. Every day we're redefining what it means to be a law firm, always looking to become more involved in our clients' businesses and stretching for the most pragmatic, most cost-effective solution.

*CLANZ report, November 2006

The hub of a new lifestyle economy.

4 million people on the rim of the Pacific Ocean. When the rest of the world thinks of New Zealand they don't think of our cities, they think of our seas and our skies, our produce and our provinces. Our blues and our greens.

Think of Tauranga, in the beautiful Bay of Plenty. With New Zealand's largest port, with a billion dollar kiwifruit industry, with surf and sunshine, with bush and pastures, isn't this the real New Zealand?

Certainly the 100 or more new residents arriving here each week agree. The population is going to double by 2020 and by then Tauranga will be New Zealand's fourth largest city. Business likes the Bay of Plenty as well. Our economic growth has outstripped the rest of country two years running*.

In the 21st Century people are making different choices about where they live and how they work. There's a new "lifestyle economy" emerging and - not surprisingly - Tauranga is at the hub.

"I've had a much higher level of responsibility sooner and I feel like I'm making a real contribution"
